

EVIL FORCE

The eye at the top is god's. He is almighty and powerful, He is watching over the tree because he is the only one who can be almighty. he is watching people to stop them from disobeying him. He uses his power as a threat sometimes that's why he watches over the tree. He also knows that the snake is a cunning and sly animal the snake disbelieves god's power, that is why he is up the tree. The snake is like the 'evil force'. Trying to overpower god, but if he tries then people will suffer, so that is what the fire is representing.

The Snake represents the evil force the evil forces that could be representing in this world today could be the devil, because he is someone who tries to overpower god and cause evil in a Christians day. For some Christians I think the evil forces that it represents could be people who murder and kill, because if someone shoots someone they are going above god and trying to be powerful by doing what they want. When someone kills someone they cause suffering to lots of people, just like the snake causes suffering to Adam, Eve and himself by taking the apple and disobeying god.

From an atheist point of view suffering comes from the heart of human beings, God causes none of the suffering it is what we as humans do that causes suffering. Humans are the evil force in the world not any spiritual things such as a devil.

The eye at the top would not be god. The eye would be the human eye because we are the ones who would have power over the world and stop all things from happening we are the ones who control what happens in our lives no one else.
