

How do I feel about the fact that there are different types of Muslims?

I don't really like it that we have Sunni and Shi'a Muslims because we have our differences and it would be bad if we met Shi'a Muslims and we started arguing about whose teaching is right and who should be the caliph, when we should be doing other useful things like praying to Allah and seeking forgiveness for the sins we made.

On the other hand I know that we agree about the important things like Tawhid, the authority of the Qur'an and our prophet (Muhammad). I don't mind because they are just trying to find ways to go to heaven like all Muslims in different ways
